Valuable facetime with cruise trailblazers

The cruise industry is extraordinary – made even more alluring when industry professionals of all stripes can converge to experience the thrill of live experiences.

Be sure to stay on the lookout for these upcoming Seatrade Cruise Events, each a beacon for leaders, executives, delegates, and solution providers from every sector of the industry and every corner of the earth, as well as a series of intimate experiences tailored to specific communities.

The world's largest gathering of cruise leaders, influencers, and innovators

The meeting place for Europe's cruise market

Expanding Asia's cruise market through sustainable growth

The international passageway to the Mediterranean cruise market

Focused assemblies uniting regional destinations and top cruise lines

A new wave of adventure for a new generation of travellers

Celebrating achievement, innovation & industry success

The safety and welfare of our customers, guests and staff is always our greatest priority.

Just as cruise lines are implementing new health and safety procedures, so are our events.

To learn more, you can check out the upcoming Seatrade Cruise Event's website which will have a dedicated page detailing the regulations and precautions we are implementing while still bringing you the dedicated platforms for meetings, collaboration and business generation.

For event dates and locations, go to:
seatradecruiseevents.com

To learn more about how you can participate in these events as a supplier or sponsor, contact sales@seatradecruise.com today!

To the cruise community,

As we write this, we are still reflecting on the events of Seatrade Cruise Virtual, the first-ever virtual event hosted by the Seatrade Cruise team. We continue to be awestruck by the resilience, comradery and innovation of this great industry and are grateful to be part of it. We thank you, our partners, our customers and our guests, for embracing the “new normal” with us.

At a live event, this letter serves as a way for us to welcome you to the week. In this case, we want to use it more as a way to guide you through these pages, and help you make sure you are getting the most of your post-event experiences.

In these pages you'll find many summaries, lists and reviews of what happened last month. These will be linked to sessions in the event platform (if you are logged in) for you to watch over the next few weeks, suppliers for you to connect with, and articles for you to read. Because the event took place on your laptop, where your emails and daily responsibilities are also popping up regularly, we wanted to make sure you knew that you still had access, and that you still had time to connect. Please note, that pass access does not change post-show. If you are looking to change your access, please email seatradcruisevirtual@informa.com.

At a live event, I'd also have the pleasure of being in the same space as you to discuss what I'm learning, who you've met, how the food is and more... so I thought I could share some of my takeaways from last week here, and invite you to share yours with my team and I on social? Just mention us @SeatradeCruise, and we'll have a look!

- The conference programme was so rich I would hate to miss anything, but I was consistently heartened by the optimism and positivity for cruising to come back strong in the months ahead. This rang true throughout the four days, from the State of the Global Cruise Industry keynote through to the final session: This Time Next Year and all the sessions in between.
- It was incredible to connect with delegates from the Cook Islands to Alaska, from Svalbard to Chile and see the global reach of the cruise industry and its collaborative efforts.
- The innovative solutions and services showcased in the Virtual Expo and the Innovation Zone showcase how even in these trying times, cruise lines and suppliers are creative, forward-thinking and embrace change.

Through it all, our community is passionate about creating an incredible, safe and memorable guest experience. We love what we do, and I personally believe this industry is an amazing one to be in.

If you or any of your colleagues have a question or are hoping to learn more about future Seatrade Cruise events – live or virtual – please do contact us.

Until we meet again,

Mary Bond

Cruise leaders highly optimistic for US restart this year

Cruise line leaders voiced optimism about sailing from the US this year with many safety layers in place and a commitment to 100% testing of all passengers and crew. In their first joint conference appearance during 2020, the Big Four leaders — Frank Del Rio, Arnold Donald, Richard Fain, Pierfrancesco Vago — spoke during the 'State of the Global Cruise Industry' keynote at Seatrade Cruise Virtual. Watch the session HERE ▶

They pointed to the largely successful slow, gradual resumption of cruising in Europe, the numerous science-based protocols emerging from the recommendations of the Healthy Sail Panel and other experts and a commitment to universal testing as reasons for their optimism.

We're at an important tipping point. How much we've learned, how far we've come in six months. The time seems right. All the forces are coming together.

Richard Fain, Chairman & CEO
Royal Caribbean Group

'We're at an important tipping point,' said Fain, chairman and CEO, Royal Caribbean Group. 'How much we've learned, how far we've come in six months. The time seems right. All the forces are coming together.'

● 100% TESTING — GLOBALLY

Announced today, testing of all passengers and crew has been agreed to by all Cruise Lines International Association member lines worldwide, expanding the industry's earlier commitment to universal testing for all lines subject to the US no-sail order. CLIA President and CEO Kelly Craighead said this applies to ships with the capacity to carry more than 250 people. The cruise industry is the sole travel entity

● EUROPE SUCCESSES

'Everybody's talking about vaccines. Vaccines won't be the magic wand. Vaccines will be part of the solution, but testing will be the solution,' said Vago, executive chairman of MSC Cruises, which resumed sailing in mid-August from Italy.

Things have gone well during a gradual startup and passengers rate their experiences highly.

Vago said ships can provide a 'safe cocoon.'

Still, should infections occur, it will be possible to isolate and care for anyone who's sick and let others go on with their lives (and vacations), according to Donald, president and CEO, Carnival Corp. & plc.

'Government resources will not be needed to deal with it because we have accounted for it,' Fain added. 'We can isolate [COVID] without inconveniencing our guests, our crew and, very importantly, the societies we visit and their governments.'

He also asserted cruise ships have the technology to do contact tracing better than elsewhere.

● 60 DAYS TO GET AN NCLH SHIP BACK INTO SERVICE

The CDC's no-sail order and CLIA's voluntary suspension of service go through October, which raised hope cruises may be able to start in November. But yesterday, Norwegian Cruise Line Holdings said its three brands would delay through November.

to start up a ship, especially if it's been laid up for six-plus months.

'It is not turning on a light switch,' he said. 'We have to repatriate crew. We have to install the different technologies and the 74 recommendations from the Healthy Sail Panel.'

Certainly the No. 1 obstacle is the no-sail order, but there are others, Del Rio noted. In the case of the NCLH brands, it will take at least 60 days to get a ship back into service.

'This is not a race,' Del Rio continued. 'I'm in no rush to be the first one out of the gate. I want to do things correctly.'

It is not turning on a light switch. We have to repatriate crew. We have to install the different technologies and the 74 recommendations from the Healthy Sail Panel.

Frank Del Rio, President & CEO
Norwegian Cruise Line Holdings

Calling his optimism level about restarting this year 'very high,' Fain concurred: 'But we're not going to do it until we're all confident that it's safe and healthy ... The 74 recommendations of the Healthy Sail Panel give us confidence, along with what has happened in Europe.'

● DEMAND FOR CRUISES

Asked if the highly reported shipboard outbreaks and quarantines of the spring would have a lasting impact, Del Rio didn't think so.

Bookings are strong, he said: 'That we are booking as much business as we are booking for the future shows the resiliency.' He noted Oceania Cruises had just racked up its best holiday sale (Labor Day) in the line's history, while Regent Seven Seas sold out its 2023 world cruise within a week of launching, a first.

'Cruising is going to come back strong,' Del Rio predicted. ■

Everybody's talking about vaccines. Vaccines won't be the magic wand. Vaccines will be part of the solution, but testing will be the solution.

Pierfrancesco Vago, Executive Chairman
MSC Cruises

— and perhaps the only industry of any kind — to stand behind 100% testing, Fain said.

During the 'State of the Global Cruise Industry' session today, NCLH President and CEO Del Rio explained it takes time

Professional Women in Cruise 2020

Presented in Partnership with

Round Up

The 2020 Professional Women in Cruise discussion brought together professionals at different points in their career to discuss what it means to have, and be, a role model.

I thought I had the Professional Women in Cruise 2020 panel in the bag when we finished gathering speakers for the live event in April. But we all know what happens to the best laid plans in 2020...you toss them out the window and start again. For the virtual edition of PWiC, we started from scratch - while I didn't know what I wanted to talk about, I DID know what I didn't want to talk about...and that was COVID. I felt we all needed a break, however brief, and something a bit inspirational - so we decided on Role Models: How to Pick One and How to Be One. As I didn't want this to be just a top down discussion, we organized a panel of women at all points in their careers to share their ideas of role models - for themselves and for others.

Some of my favorite moments happened when our panelists took the original idea of a question and turned it on its head with their answer or went much deeper than I had intended. When finding role models for yourself, it is not just someone you want to be like, it is also someone with skill sets you don't have to help you "level up." It is a person with passion who is working for the greater good. Someone who is not only successful in their own right but also WILLING to help YOU succeed. Role models are people who not only conduct themselves with respect but treat others with respect as well.

I have always felt that the real "magic" of our event was the networking that happened after the panel discussion ended and the attendees had the opportunity to talk among themselves. I wasn't really sure if we could recreate that in a virtual world and when I learned we would be pre-recording the session, I definitely had some doubts about how this would play out. But when we aired on Thursday there was a large audience that was very active in the chat log, which added a whole new dimension of interaction for me. At a live event, attendees aren't just injecting themselves into the conversation, but with the pre-recorded and virtual format, we had added another level of "intimacy" and interaction, and it was wonderful.

My thanks to the Seatrade and Informa teams that worked behind-the-scenes to make this happen, as well as to our amazing panel - Beth Hatt, Christine Klimkowski, Brooke Miles and Ingrid Quallo. And as successful as our virtual event was, I am truly looking forward to SEEING everyone at the Professional Women in Cruise event at Seatrade Cruise Global 2021.

Seatrade Cruise Awards, the global cruise industry's most distinguished award programme, announced this year's winners at a virtual ceremony on 6 October 2020, celebrating its 14th edition during the first-ever Seatrade Cruise Virtual.

“The programme, once again, received a record number of nominees recognising the best in international cruise industry success, ambition and innovation,” says Mary Bond, Group Director, Seatrade Cruise. “We congratulate our outstanding awards recipients, and express gratitude to our independent panel of judges for their devoted effort to selecting our winners.”

This year's edition received a record-breaking number of entries from every corner of the globe, highlighting remarkable new innovations, technologies and projects and honouring key personalities that have made an outstanding contribution to the industry.

The awards were presented by Mary Bond, Group Director, Seatrade Cruise, alongside Ingo Soerensen, Area VP, Global Cruise Sales, Oracle Hospitality as well as Cruise Baltic's Claus Bodker and V. Ships Leisure's Per Bjornsen.

Per Bjornsen, Director of V.Ships Leisure, presenting the Personality of the Year award to Mário Ferreira, chairman of Mystic Invest, commented, “this year's Personality has lead a dedicated team who has evolved from a regional river cruise operator to a global player with both his own brand or by partnering with other operators. The company is ready for a massive expansion in brand new ships using the latest technologies and has been one of the first to restart cruising with robust testing and operating protocols demonstrating resilience in a challenging environment.”

We congratulate our outstanding awards recipients, and express gratitude to our independent panel of judges for their devoted effort to selecting our winners.

MARY BOND, GROUP DIRECTOR, SEATRADE CRUISE
